ANNUAL REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

JUNE 20, 1905.

Another twelve months has passed and once more we find ourselves in this ancient hall of learning. So many of our members have passed over the border within the past year we are somewhat surprised to find ourselves here again.

Since our last annual report, have been received four hundred and eleven bound volumes and five hundred and eighty-nine pamphlets.

The library has been opened daily, as in former years, with about the same attendance. Members desiring to use the library in the morning hours have been accorded the privilege. We should like to see more original investigation going on, but those who have the wish to do this cannot afford the time it requires.

The usual amount of binding of periodicals has been done and we should like to expend a large amount on newspapers. The current history contained in many of the higher class magazines may properly be added to our shelves, chiefly for future reference.

It seems to be a wise step on the part of many of the Historical Societies of the Western States to support a quarterly journal. We are in receipt of several such as: The American Antiquarian of Chicago, The Indiana Quarterly, The West Virginia Quarterly, The Tennessee Historical Quarterly, The Pennsylvania Historical Magazine, The Iowa Journal, The Gulf States Historical Magazine and The Oregon Historical Quarterly. These as the organs of their respective State Historical Societies are doing much good work. Our Society combined with the several County Societies might unite in the support of a historical journal in Maine if an editor can be found.

Sets of American periodicals are destined to become more scarce and difficult to obtain, as the Salvation Army in our large cities is soliciting the gift of periodicals as a source of income. In the city of Portland alone, this season more than fifty tons of magazines have been sent to the paper mills. We can find a place for numbers and volumes of any of the New England magazines.

Among the principal donations of the past year is the collection of newspapers formed by our corresponding member, Hon. Marshall Pierce of Oakland, Cal., given to us by his daughters. The collection numbers over one hundred nicely bound volumes and consists of The Boston Investigator, 1831-1897; The Index of Toledo and Boston, 1870-1884; The Anti-Slavery Standard, 1858-1870; The Liberator, 1846-1865; The Boston Commonwealth, 1862-1876; The Eastern Journal of Biddeford, 1852-1853, and The Saco Union for the same period.

Sundry other journals of minor importance, and perhaps more or less scarce, are in the same collection. We have placed in each volume a plate bearing the inscription:

Bequest of Hon. Marshall Pierce of Saco, Maine, and Oakland, California.
Born, Standish, Maine,
August 16, 1823.
Died, East Baldwin, Maine,
March 25, 1900.

It is believed that there is no wood pulp in these newspapers and that they will survive longer than a marble monument.

Mrs. Israel P. Warren has kindly promised us her set of the Christian Mirror.

W. R. F. Gerrish of West Sullivan, a young printer and publisher, is sending us his little sheet filled with local news and is well worthy of preservation.

The publishers of the Rumford Falls Times has also placed us on his free list.

The North East, Masonic Token, Maine Journal of Medicine, The Mechanic Falls Ledger, are sent to our library.

In response for our Popham Memorial Volume sent to the Blundell School at Tiverton, England, we have received a copy of a handsome volume of biographies and portraits entitled, Blundell's Worthies, 1604 to 1904, together with some numbers of the School Journal and a pleasant note from the librarian, in which he refers to Sir John Popham as our Common Founder. Travellers from Maine will do well to visit this famous old school and other points of interest in our original Home County of Devonshire.

During the past year we have added twenty-five local histories to our library, chiefly of Massachusetts and Connecticut towns, the latest accession being the magnificent work by Dr. Henry R. Stiles of the history and genealogies of Ancient Wethersfield. Our collection of the Vital Records of Massachusetts towns now numbers forty-four volumes.

As our Maine towns have not yet had their early vital records printed we have subscribed for the next best thing in the shape of Mr. H. E. Mitchell's Maine Town Registers; these number forty volumes already issued, and contain facts of local history not to be found elsewhere.

The year has been somewhat prolific in the issue of new books of special interest to us and we may briefly mention Mr. King's two volumes of the York deeds, the history of the Aroostook War, and the York celebration.

History of the Maine Baptists, by Dr. Burrage, the Centennial of Blue Hill Academy, The Chipman Family of America, The Coburn Classical Institute Centennial and the Romance of Casco Bay by H. M. Sylvester, and some pamphlets.

Among the historical works in preparation of interest is a new history of King Philip's War. It is by Mr. George W. Ellis of Hartford, Connecticut.

The several Maine local histories announced last year are growing and we expect will be ready in another year. Mr. Cole of Buckfield, advises that his work has been delayed somewhat by ill health, and Mr. Greene of Boothbay Harbor, reports that his printers have most of his MS. in hand.

An important accession to the Society's archives are the Lewis family papers of North Yarmouth. To the historians of that town these will be invaluable. Some interesting early deeds and commissions collected by our former president, Mr. Willis, are the generous gifts of his granddaughter, Miss Adeline Willis.

Among our visitors of the past year was Professor Willoughby of Cambridge, who quickly recognized the old wallet in our cabinet as a rare specimen of Indian work woven of Indian hemp and embroidered with dyed moose hair. It was the work of Mollock Net, an Indian squaw of the Anasagunticook tribe of the Androscoggin valley. This specimen of a lost art was given to the Society by Mrs. Kimball of Bethel in 1863. Professor Willoughby has described it fully with a colored illustration, in a recent number of the American Anthropologist.

Our venerable corresponding member, Dr. Albert B. Waymouth, of Lahaina, of the Hawaiian Islands, manifests his continued interest in the Society by his communications and gifts. He claims that the little hamlet of Cockington, near Torquay, England, was the birthplace of Captain George Waymouth whose memory we are about to celebrate.

This is truly the age of books. Never have they seemed more plentiful nor so cheap. It would be an easy matter to increase our receipts of books and pamphlets but we cannot find room for them. In another decade or two, all, except public libraries, will need to confine themselves to special lines of collecting.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON WADSWORTH-LONGFELLOW MEMORIAL.

Your committee feel justified in saying that since the beneficent gift of Mrs. Ann Longfellow Pierce and the action of the Maine Historical Society, there has been created among us an historic monument quite unique in Maine, and to be compared only with the more famous historic shrines of foreign lands and a few great monuments in America, like Mt. Vernon, the home of General Washington. To a degree no one could have anticipated, the Wadsworth-Longfellow House is stimulative of a true historic spirit toward domestic conditions and the family and civil life of Maine a century ago. It has revived the part played by the Wadsworth family and many others of similar influence during the development and successful expression of the spirit of liberty in the British Provinces of America and their final erection into the United States of America; and the succeeding pioneer service in legal and educational ability that lay at the foundation of our nation. It has encouraged a knowledge of the works of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and has shown the lasting popular power of his poetry over English speaking peoples. It has become a center for literally thousands of tourists who annually enter our State.

For the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Oregon, the Wadsworth-Longfellow House was chosen as the type of building to represent Maine with her industries and resources.

During the summers of 1903 and 1904, 12,440 people paid admission to the house, and by this means a net sum of $2,137.16 was added to the treasury of the Society. It is a most interesting spectacle on any day during the summer to see the old house thrown open to the visitors, the attractive arrangement of the rooms under the supervision of Mr. Nathan Goold and his assistants, Mr. McLellan and Miss Kaler; and the generous women of the Women's Literary Union, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Daughters of 1812, who are in daily attendance to give information and extend courtesy.

The house still proves one of the chief sources of income for the building of the new library of the Society. This building is now fast approaching completion. Your committee have proceeded slowly in the progress of the work, a slowness that has justified itself. For many new conditions have arisen which could not be foreseen, but which have gradually shaped the character and arrangement of the library for its wider, fuller uses. Another year will doubtless witness the completed work.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN C. PERKINS, for the Committee.
